New SES managers to forge closer links with principal contractors

Following its recent success in securing new contract wins worth more than £75 million, award winning building services provider SES is delighted to announce the appointment of four new Contracts Managers across the country.

Keith Fisher, Lee Fisher, Ian Smith and Bill Pinkerton will report directly to the Operations Directors in each of the company's three Divisions and will be responsible for the profitable control and management of a number of contracts within their area of the business.

Commenting on the new appointments, Peter Lewis, Chief Operating Officer for SES said, "These new managers are highly qualified and extremely knowledgeable in their field. The intensity of their experience comes from years of working on a number of complex, multi-faceted and high profile projects around the country. I'm confident that their skills and passion for the job will help forge closer relationships with our principal contractors, resulting in the highest levels of customer satisfaction in our targeted sectors."

New SES contracts include: John Lennon Airport; Goodhope Hospital and Bournville College in Birmingham; Holland Park School in London and BSF schools in Nottingham, Durham and Hull.
